Matilda II (A12) – Crossroads going from the Panguna Mine to Buin in the south, Bougainville Island (Salomon Islands)

This tank was knocked out by either 75 or 120mm the japs had. Two Japanese guns on either side of the tank, one is supposed to have done the fatal shot. The shell exploded just above the drivers head blowing in the periscope and killing him (Cam Finlay)

Matilda II (A12) – Bougainville Island (Salomon Islands)

This tank is unknown to most visitors and is not visible from the road unless you know where to look. Ran over a mine and crushed the driver. When I looked in the compartment the drivers water bottle was still in place, cork intact. The cork was dried up and doubt it was the original water but it was still full and this was 1981 (Cam Finlay)

Matilda II (A12) – Australian Armour and Artillery Museum, Cairns (Australia)

"This Matilda was one of the first tanks I restored years ago, hence the LVT turret, which was all I could find to put on it at the time. This Matilda ended up at the Cairns Armour and Artillery Museum. I later built an original turret for the owner, (Rob Lowden), from pieces recovered from an army firing range. He removed the LVT turret and fitted this to the hull" (Ron Fry)

Formerly part of the Aberdeen proving ground museum. This tank, which is marked with the War Department number T10099 on an October, 1942 picture, was lost to the Germans in a battle at Sidi Rezag-Halfaya Pass in November 1941. It was re-marked by the Germans and used as a pill box at the same pass until recaptured by the British after the battle of El Alamein in October 1942. It was then sent to the US as part of reverse Lend-Lease scrap shipments in 1943 and diverted by COL Jarrett to the APG museum in 1944 (USA AFVs register and Trevor Larkum)

Matilda Close Support – Royal New South Wales Lancers Museum Parramatta, NSW (Australia) – running condition

Back in 1998 one of our at that time Museum volunteers, Phil Hastings, told Dave Crisp about a Matilda that was at Moss Vale. He had known about it for twenty years and was going to restore it himself; but lacked the time. A group led by Dave drove to Mittagong to have a look. They found the hull though covered with moss, full of water and leaves was complete with engines. It was surrounded by trees and had not moved for over forty years. After draining out the water and cleaning foliage off the hull Dave looked for a number or name. After much work, he found the number "T29923" and some other faded letters. The number correspond to a tank nicknamed "Ace", which was the name applied to the troop leader 1 Troop A Squadron's tank (John Howells). The tank is currently being restored. WDN 29923 "ACE" Mk IV CS built between Nov 1941 and April 1942 by the Vulcan factory under contract T1244 in a batch of 102 CS vehicles. Operated by the 1st Australian tank Battalion (A Sqn) disposed of on the 1/2/1951 at public auction. (Matt MacMahon) any tank that I forgot...

This document is a compilation of photos published on the web. I would like to thank especially Rafał Białecki, who deserved the most of the job on this document, and also the people who took these photos and put them on their websites, or sent them to me, and those who helped me doing these lists (particularly people of the AFV News Discussion Board). For any question, you can email me at soldat_ryan@hotmail.com
